Your students should be able to use measurement terms appropriately and should be able to measure a variety of objects at home and at school. At the middle level of the school, it is normal that students have a complete revision of all mathematical skills. The mastery of the concepts of the previous grade levels is expected. No real new concepts were introduced, but students should be comfortable calculation factors, multiple, integer amounts and square roots for numbers. Your students should be able to write algebraic equations and write statements to understand simple formulas. If you sign up for a free account, you can create a virtual bookshelf with your child's favorites so you can find them easily whenever you want. View selected suggestions and answers and use etools, if provided, to make sense of your student you are working on. If you want to stick to the dozens of free books available, click on what you like, and will appear in a pop-up window.
